MURDERED FOR HIS MONEY. An Italian Laborer Killed by One of His Countrymen.

THE TRAGEDY WHICH WAS DISCOVERED IN AN OLD HOUSE SATURDAY-A FOUL AND PRE-MEDITATED DEED - THE MURDERER AR-

The body found Saturday in an old, dilapidated and unoccupied house near the new reservoir and Howard university, as stated in THE STAR of Saturday, was identified later in the day as that of Carmine Rotunno, a middleaged Italian, who had been employed as a laborer on the new water works. The condition of the body and the circumstances attending Rotunno's disappearance indicated that he had been the victim of a foul and cold-blooded murder. The body was in an advanced state of de-composition. The police ascertained that Rotunno had been living at a boarding-house on 8th street extended, kept by Carmine and LURED TO THE OLD HOUSE.

About three weeks ago he was discharged from work, and had since then been doing nothing. He had been saving, and had accumulated about $200, which, it is said, he was accustomed to carry about his person. Last Tuesday night Antonio Nardello, alias Rosso, a young Italian, known among his countrymen as a dissolute idler, appeared at Gaudia's boarding house, and, it appears, made an appointment to meet Rotunno at 3 o'clock the next morning, near the new reservoir, on the pretence of taking him to a man who would give him work at $1.50 a day. That was the last seen of Rotunno by his fellow boarders, some of whom warned him against Nardello. When throat cut in the old house Saturday, they at once accused Nardello of the murder, ARREST OF NARDELLO.

it became known among the Italians yesterday that Rotunno's body had been found with the

Meanwhile, the police made active search for the supposed murderer, but he had disappeared from the house on Maryland avenue, to which he had been traced. About 9 o'clock at night Officers Acton and Lamb arrested him at the Baltimore and Potomac depot in company with a colored woman named Willa C., Morrow. Nardello and the woman were about to leave the city for Baltimore. The house of Sarah Johnson alias Williams, on Maryland avenue, where Willa Morrow lived, was raided by the police of the first precinct later at night. In the room occupied by Willa Morrow a suit of clothes belonging to Nardello and stained with blood was discovered. A bloody razor, also identified as Nardello's, was found in the old house where Rotunno's body was discovered. Various per-sons were found who had seen Nardello displaying money freely. When arrested, how-ever, he had but $9 in his pocket. He was violent when taken to the first precinct station house Saturday night, and threatened suicide. As a matter of safety he was placed in irons. He denied all knowledge of the murder.

A CONFESSION. The prisoner was removed yesterday morning to the second precinct station where at 11 o'clock Coroner Patterson held an inquest. There were about 20 witnesses to the identity of the remains, and to the conversation alluded to between Kotunno and Nardello last Tuesday night. The most important witness was Fran-cesco Leone, an Italian, who by an arrange-ment with Sergeant Lombardy visited Nardello in his cell, and obtained a confession from him. Nardello said in this confession that Pasquale Gesimonte and Pasquale Aboudante were accomplices; that he lured Rotunno to the shanty, and there the three demanded Rotunno's money which was refused. They then attacked Rotunno, Gesimonte and himself holding him, The jury returned a verdict, "That the said Carmine Rotunno came to his death in an old unoccupied house on the farm of Curtis Gilbert, in the county of Washington, the District of the throat inflicted with a razor in the hands of Antonio Nardello."

THE ALLEGED ACCOMPLICES NOT ARRESTED. Nardello has been committed to jail. The police satisfied themselves that there was no truth in his statements implicating Gesimonte and Aboudante, two hard working men who were peacefully sleeping at their boarding house when the murder is said to have been commit-ted. These men were, therefore, not arrested. A man named Salvatore Scura, who was seen D. Smith and Jesse Carter, quarreled on 25th street, between M and N streets, about a gambling debt of fifty cents which Smith owed Carter. Smith stabbed Carter in the left breast, ago, and lived three years in New York. He which may prove fatal. The wounded man was removed to Freedman's hospital, and Smith was arrested by Sergeant Burgess. It appears that Singleton had taken his wife's shoes and was about to cut them, so as to keep her from going out, which angered the wife. The new regime is now understood to be fully inaugurated and much is said to be expected from it.
